

er

geht

ja

nicht

nach

hause

The diagram illustrates a network or system architecture. A central horizontal line represents a backbone or main network. From this backbone, several vertical lines extend both upwards and downwards, representing individual nodes or components connected to the main network. The vertical lines are of varying lengths and are spaced out along the horizontal backbone, suggesting a distributed or modular system design.
